GERMANS ENJOY AN OUTING

Peninsula Picnic for Cormoran's Men.

MAKE MERRY WITH GAMES AND DANCE

Several Hundred Guests Enjoy the Day Spent in the Manner of the Fatherland.

Kaiser Wilhelm's brave tars from the warship Cormoran laid siege to the Peninsula at Pearl Harbor, captured E. F. Dillingham's beautiful country place and held the fort for the entire afternoon and evening, when they were entrained on a special and were whirled back to Honolulu and thence back to the warship without the loss of a man. It was a splendid bloodless victory, and the German colors waved triumphantly during the day over the grassy tree-shaded slopes on the shore of the land-locked bay.

It was the occasion of the picnic given by the German residents of Honolulu in honor of the officers and men of the warship. A portion of the Fatherland was transplanted to fair Hawaii for a few hours, the German language, German refreshments with plenty of lager to wash it down, German singing and music, German games and dancing and all the joviality and cheerfulness, which is ever present at a gathering of the subjects of his Imperial German Majesty, predominating. The white duck uniforms of the tars of the German navy, relieved here and there by the gold braid of an officer, the excellent little brass band, the refreshment marquee beneath which the amber lager was turned into glasses which were lifted high into the air when a stentorian in "Hoch der Kaiser!" rang out, all helped to make a picturesque picnic, almost the first of the kind ever attempted on Oahu.

At 2:15 p. m. the special train pulled into the Peninsula station and the seventy-six sailors and petty officers in command of Oberleutnant Albrecht detrained and formed in the road behind the brass band. The Honolulu Germans by birth and parentage, men and women, old and young, fell in behind and to the strains of a German air, marched over to the Dillingham place, a big cart weighted down with half a dozen 10-gallon kegs of beer trailing along behind. Under the big sailcloth stretched between two trees tables were already in place and covered with plates of rye bread, cheese and ham sandwiches, with platters of schmeck-kase and Wienerwurst and big bowls of salad, near by. F. W. Klebahn, Captain Dabel, Will Schmidt, Mr. Rolly (not a German), Mr. Muller, George Rodiek, Mr. Constable and others at once rolled kegs of beer to a table, the pump was started, and soon the thirsty sailors were enjoying their favorite drink. The band played German and American airs, stopping occasionally to drain glasses or smoked cigars, and the crowd became jovial and ready for amusement. To call for a march, the band struck up a pretty German air.

Mrs. H. A. Isenberg, wife of the consul, looked at the sailors, who were only waiting for a leader to start the fun, and taking Wachmeistermart Zimmerman, a natty looking jackie, by the hand, ran out into the open space and took her place at the head of a line of couples which quickly formed behind. Sailor Zimmermann's handsome Vandyke-bearded face blushed when he found himself escorted by the wife of the consul, but with true German chivalry he courteously offered her his arm and the march began. Forming into columns of fours and eights, circling and countermarching, skipping over the lawn, and lastly breaking into a polka the amusements were fairly put under way. Zimmermann was the hero of the day, and envious and yet admiring glances were cast toward him by his comrades.

Then a typical German group was kodaked by Mrs. Isenberg. The band with its instruments squatted upon the lawn, each man holding aloft a brimful glass. Behind them stood the remainder of the warship's contingent, each striking an attitude and holding his glass as only a German can. Then came an amusing feature. Nearly a dozen of the young men from Hackfeld & Co.'s establishment, headed by the irrepressible Muller, formed themselves into a "German band," just such an organization as one sees and listens to in the big Eastern cities. In all manner of ridiculous attitudes, and with bombastic attempts to "make" music, they marched and countermarched to the amusement of everybody, and then had their "pictures" taken.

Then came one of the games which is always played at every picnic gathering of villagers in the Fatherland. Oberleutnant Albrecht stood in the center at three circles of men and women, and the game consisted in chasing one another around the circle, until a convenient place could be found by the pursued in front of a person in the inner circle when the rear one had to escape the pursuer. The sailors sighed when the game came to an end, but there was plenty of dancing afterwards on the grass. When a sailor could not find a partner he selected one of his comrades. When other amusements palled there was recourse to the marquee where the beer was ever flowing. Many 10-gallon kegs were emptied when, long after darkness, the people were brought back to the city. The picnic was successful in every way, and nothing occurred to mar the perfect pleasure of the day. The committee which was in charge of the day's events were F. W. Klebahn, George Rodiek, H. C. Pfleger, Captain Dabel and Emil Berndt.

Crowding to California.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—Thirteen thousand people have taken advantage this year of the low rates to this State effective in March and September last. The Southern Pacific Passenger Department issued yesterday the figures of colonist and second-class passenger travel from the East to California. For September 1,741 colonists and 327 second-class passengers came to California by the way of El Paso. By way of Ogden there were 5,872 colonists and 536 second-class travelers. In March of this year 1,987 colonists and 208 second-class passengers came by the way of El Paso and 3,587 colonists and 729 second-class passengers via the Ogden gateway. The low colonist rates from the East are to continue in effect this month over the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe and their connections. The Santa Fe has not yet issued its figures relative to colonist and second-class travel for last March and September.

A Mud Campaign.

FORT RILEY, Kansas, Oct. 4.—The maneuvers at Camp Root are stuck in the mud. It will be at least forty-eight hours before anything can be undertaken. Conditions in the camp are very unpleasant. With fine weather on Sunday it is believed that the ground will dry sufficiently to permit of the resumption of the maneuvers on Monday.

KAUAI'S VOTERS ARE REPUBLICAN

Great Gatherings Greet Prince Kuhio On His Island Tour.

Party Men Everywhere Are Hard at Work For the Success of the Entire Ticket.

Kauai has shown in the series of meetings held during the past ten days by Prince Kuhio that Republicanism is gaining ground among the natives of the garden isle. From Hanalei to Nawiliwili the tour of the prince was one of triumphs, not even excepting Waimea, where by the dragging of the natives by Home Rulers under orders from Honolulu, the meeting of the Republicans was kept down to the lowest figure of any place on the island.

Prince Kuhio, Stephen Desha, and Representative Makekau arrived in the steamer W. G. Hall yesterday morning, after having given a full week to the northern island. They held eight or ten meetings, covered the entire island and found on the part of the people a great willingness and desire to hear what they had to say concerning the issues of the campaign. The first meeting at Hanalei was one which set the note of the entire trip. There seems to be no feeling there except one of confidence in the future and the success of the Republican party, and the Hawaiians are stalwarts in their defense of the party. At Kilauea and Kealia the meetings were not so large, but there was nothing short in the enthusiasm which was displayed among the people. Then came Waimea, and there the small size of the meeting caused inquiries to be made. These developed that the committee of the Home Rule party here had sent instructions to the leaders there to prevent the meeting if possible, and the result was that sentiments kept many people from attending the gathering. Some of the Hawaiians were seen, however, and they were asked what was the matter and told the story of the orders. This put the Prince on his mettle and he sought some of his fellow countrymen, and they listened to his remarks and after he had concluded said that he had opened their eyes and they would struggle to make the people see how they were being fooled.

From that time on the tour was a triumphal procession, the people at Kekaha, Koloa, Lihue and Nawiliwili showing their interest in the fight in many ways. That end of the island seems to have discovered the unsatisfactory nature of the claims of Wilcox, and the result has been that the speakers for Home Rule, sent up to discountenance the Republicans, were unable to do anything with the natives. Poepeoe was made the commissioner to represent Wilcox, who felt that he must go on to Hawaii, and that astute politician has found already that he has no chance to turn the natives Home Ruleward once their eyes have been opened.

Prince Kuhio was in fine spirits and health yesterday, when he had time to get the effects of travel worn off, and he went into the task of future plans with a vigor which betokened success. He spent four hours going over the plans of campaign with the committee, and then went off for a little rest with friends. Of his trip he said: "We had a most satisfactory time in every way. It is remarkable to see the change that has come over the people, for they are now anxious to hear everything that can be told them as to the political outlook, and they grasp the situation at once. The work on Kauai is most systematic and the prospects are that every Republican candidate will be elected. There is a strong combination working for Republican success this year. The Gays, the Wilcoxes, the Rices, are all out strong for the ticket, and they are using to great advantage their long standing friendship with the Hawaiian people, who are in turn pledging their strength to the party."

"I am delighted with the feeling on the island and believe that we will win there, for the entire republican ticket. All the candidates were with us on the trip and the people seemed to favor their candidacy."

As the result of the long conference between the candidate for delegate and the executive committee yesterday, it was decided that he should go to Maui tomorrow, and that he should return to this city October 26th to spend the last week in work here. This will give him ample time to cover Maui, and as well will permit him to have time to see everyone of the voters on Oahu, so that there will be no difficulty about the interest or dash of the closing week of the campaign. The arrangements for the Maui week have been put in the hands of the district committee there.

and Chairman Pogue will notify the local body as to the steamer to be used and the route which will furnish the best results. It is not known who will accompany the candidate, and in fact it may be that he will make this trip without anyone except the local candidates.

HAWAII IS ALL RIGHT.

Advices from Hawaii are that the progress of the republican campaign is decidedly satisfactory. Just as it was on this island, the registration has been most pleasing to the party workers. The total registration for the big island is 2,981, of which the first district has 1,571, and the second 1,410. This shows an increase of 264 in the registration for the first district. The voters of Kohala number 324.

Wilcox has not been making much progress, according to the letters received Saturday, as he went on to Waimea, where he was to meet Palmer Woods. The very latest thing in campaign stories comes from Kohala. After the arrival of Wilcox on Wednesday last a story began to be circulated that Prince Kuhio was under arrest and in jail here. The charge was said to be practically lese majeste, for it was explained that the Prince had been criticizing Wilcox and saying hard things about him and his work, and the United States government protected its representatives and delegates in congress from such remarks.

Stephen Desha, candidate for senator from that island, who has been accompanying Prince Kuhio about for the past two weeks, will leave for Hilo to carry on his own fight, in the Claudine, Tuesday. He will, according to the plans which are being talked of now, make a hard and fast fight for the next two weeks, and thus will prevent any voters from being led away by eleventh hour remarks or promises of the Home Rulers. He will tour the island again and will have with him a company of the local candidates in each district. In his absence Senator Paris is making a hard fight, and the prospects are that there will be a complete turning over of the island before the end of the campaign.

MAUI GAINING GROUND.

More hopeful reports for the Republican ticket come from the island of Maui. The throwing into the campaign of the Democratic ticket, at the last, has given a new impetus to the Republican campaign, for, always hopeful, the followers of the old party now believe they will be able to snow under Senator William White. John Richardson, who is making the hardest fight for the Democrats, is confident that he may win yet, as he is of opinion that White is losing supporters among his own party. It is said to be generally recognized that the nomination of White, and the failure to pull him down for a Democrat when the fusion was agreed upon, was a political blunder on the part of Wilcox, and Mautes are now insisting that the members of the nominating convention were forced by the Honolulu pressure of Wilcox and Kalauokalani to put up the former senator.

Col. W. H. Cornwell, who returned from a trip to Maui Saturday, said that he had heard nothing but that Dickey was gaining ground, and that it would be a fight between him and Clark, with White falling out of the race before its end. He said the whole Democratic ticket was gaining ground, which means that there is increased majority for the entire Republican list in sight.

The condition on Molokai is even better than at first, for the people at the settlement have been industriously reading all that has been said concerning the leper question and the result is that there might be danger for a Home Ruler appearing there and advocating the placing of the settlement under control of the United States. ## CHEERS FOR KUHIO AND HIS PLAN

Home Rulers Are Won by His Tact.

TAKES CHALLENGE TO SHOW CAUSE

When He Finishes Those Who Had Been Jeering Stayed to Ap- plaud His Utterances.

Hawaiian love of fair play triumphed over partisanship last evening at the Kallhi Detention Camp, and as a result when the meeting of the Home Rulers had consented to listen to the defense made by Prince Kuhio and his friends, there was such a reversal of opinion that the applause for the Republican candidate was as great as that which had greeted the most impassioned appeal of the overwrought Home Ruler.

The meeting was the usual Sunday evening love feast of the Home Rule portion of the camp. The arguments were the same. The speakers boasted of what they would do in the legislature and what Wilcox would do out of it. Makainai spoke at length pleading with the people to stand together and refraining from endorsing all the ultra ideas advanced by his associates. The speakers challenged any Republican to stand before them and answer the charges of desire and intention to lead the people astray.

But they had reckoned without their host, for having an evening of rest Prince Kuhio had determined to attend the meeting to hear what was being said about him, and so he was on hand to accept the challenge. But it was not to be at once, for the moment he appeared for a chance to reply there were cries intended to prevent his speaking, and he had to sit and listen to the charges and swallow all the abuse.

When the meeting was closing, however, several men in the audience called for the Prince and demanded that he be heard. There were so many of the fairminded men in the house too that they won and the audience sat down again. Makekau was put forward first and he told of the incapacity of the last legislature, and how it failed to work. He sarcastically referred to the boasts of Home Rulers and their failure to perform, and to how Wilcox with $7000 a year seemed to be satisfied even if the people had nothing.

Prince Kuhio began by asking the people if they did not want to stand with the best and most progressive peoples, and then turned to talk to the necessity to stand in line with the majority party, if anything was to be accomplished for the good of the territory. He said there was no way to secure anything at Washington without coming out in line with the majority of the people of the country, and showed them that a man without a party among the hundreds of party men was lost and without influence.

His arguments and illustrations were so apt and forcible that in a very short time he had the men applauding, and before he closed with an appeal for the people to think gravely over the questions and then decide for themselves, there was a storm of applause which left the visitor in doubt as to whether or not it was not in fact a Republican meeting from the very first.

After it was over there were a score of men who grasped the hand of the Prince and told him that he had furnished them food for thought. One was a man who recently called the Prince a snake, and he came up that he might personally apologize, and thank the Prince for the words which had opened his eyes.

Miss Beatrice Campbell celebrated her eighth birthday Saturday with a children's party.
